The lectures

- The course it difficult but interesting
- The short recap at the start of each lecture is useful
- A more thorough summary at the end of each chapter could be useful

Exercises

- The form of the exercise session works well. Here, the lecturer present the solutions on the blackboard and answers questions.
- The exercises are well prepared, but can sometimes be quite "open" and "involved". Therefore, a few more "guided" problems helping the students to familiarise themselves with a given chapter would be nice once in a while.

Home exam

- The home exam was a great way to force the students to familiarise themselves with the content of the course.
